Pastor Says

Worship

What is worship? "The response of the creature to the creator", "The reveal of our hope to life's meanings", "The adoration of God, and the manifestation of reverence in his presence". "An experience of the awareness of God in the company of other worshippers". These are quotes from so-called experts in this field. Each speaks of an element involved in worship. But worship, like faith, defies a catagorical definement. For worship is all-inclusive. It involves the giving of praise, recognition, and one's self to that which is of supreme value-God. Really few experience this kind of worship.

The fact that so many people rarely ever attend the regular worship service of the church, means that the church isn't creating the atmosphere where people feel God's presence, or that people aren't aware of their need of the Lord. The psalmist said, "I will give thee thanks in the great congregation: I will praise thee among much people". Psalm 35:18.

We deprive ourselves of one of the great privileges of life when we neglect the public worship of God. The singing of the hymns, the reading of the scriptures, praying together, sharing in the giving of tithes and offerings, and entering into the ministry of the word, are dynamic exercises of worship. When we communicate with God as a corporate body there is a radiation of spirit which is felt by all. When we fail to participate in such an experience, as a family, or as an individual, we lose a sense of God's presence and activity in society. When this is lost, secularism becomes the major factor in our living.

When we worship, we give value to God in every phase of our existence. We come to adore Him, reverence Him and become acquainted with Him personally, and thus glorify Him in living.

We worship when we sing the great hymns of the church; When we lay our tithes and offering upon the altar, and when we accept His word as God's servant brings it in the message.

These are the factors that pour the inspiration of God into our lives, and we leave the meeting house of the Lord to take it with us into the market places of this world.

Let's all find ourselves in God's appointed place of worship, the Church, and take our families with us. "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord".

O. D. Moore

Worship At Church

Lesson for May 26, 1963

Where were you at 10:45 a.m. last Sunday? If you were going to church, you were doing something pretty special. You were going to pray and sing and listen to the Word of God. You were going, in short, to worship. People have been worshipping God for no one knows how many thousand years; but most of the people in the world have not gone to church. So it was pretty special after all. If you are a good run-of-mine Christian, you worship the heavenly Father every day of your life; only about one day in seven do you worship in a church. If you go to church and found it empty, you probably wouldn't stay. You need some people to be there, also, when you worship at church. You need to feel that you are using the time the fancy strikes you. Such worship has to be planned and prayed for ahead of time. You prayers at home; but most church-goers put on their best clothes which in the country would be called "going-to-meetin' clothes." If you were in a place that landed in a tree, you would do some praying and there no matter if your clothes were ripped half off you. But you wouldn't go to church in torn clothes. It's too special.

A Testimony

So, what were you doing at 10:45? For one thing, churchgoing is a public testimony. You were saying, without opening your mouth, "I believe in God, I believe in prayer, I believe in Christian fellowship, I believe in the kind of life the church stands for." You do not mask going to a public service (as our ancestors had to!), you ride or walk in open daylight, you would not object if some one took your picture. Would you be willing to be photographed everywhere you go? The word "church-going" is an honorable word, but some people low-rate it, as they shouldn't. It is quite true, hypocrites go to church. We have all been there and more than once. But that does not rub out the fact that most of those who are in church are there to worship, and even the dog, the idiot and the hypocrite would rue to have if there were no sincere worshippers.

Confession

Another thing: at 10:45 last Sunday you were confessing yourself a sinner. Yes sir; you didn't go with a list of your sins in your pocket or pinned to your coat; but you were going to confess your sins. It's done differently in different churches, but they all do it. Tell me where else in all the world you can find any group of people who publicly admit they are not what they know they ought to be? Most other organizations love to tell the world how good they are. At worship in church the people say right out loud how bad they are. It may be in a Catholic church where the priest exclaims in Latin, Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa — "My fault, my most grievous fault!" or it may be in a Baptist church where the minister prays, "Thou knowest that we (he means the people sitting there) are sinners and evil in Thy holy sight;" or in an and Episcopal service where all the kneeling people say together, "We have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done . . ."

For Better Living

If a man goes to church in the right spirit, if he thinks of what he is doing, if he feels the thrill of knowing he is worshipping not only with the other people he can see around him, but with the millions of others around the world praising God this morning in a thousand languages, and especially if he has felt, ever so faintly, the touch of the Holy Spirit on his heart, then such a worshipper cannot go out and be quite the same. All the week he will be a better man for having gone to church on Sunday. So at 10:45 next Sunday morning you will be saying without wowus as you head for church, "I want to be a better person next week than I was this. And I am going to the only place where I can get the help I need — the mercy-seat of God."

Farm Loans

Loans may be made by the Farmers Home Administration for irrigation, farmstead water, drainage, soil and water conservation, and forestry. These loans may be used to construct ponds, purchase irrigation systems, and install tile to drain farmland. Funds may also be used to carry out basic land treatment practices including liming, fertilizing, seeding, fencing, and to establish approved forestry practices.

Nonprofit organizations including small rural towns may obtain loans to conserve, use, develop, and control water, including the installation of community irrigation or domestic water systems, and to carry out soil conservation measures. Loans may also be made to rural groups for shifts in land use to develop recreational facilities.

Further information may be obtained from the Farmers Home Administration office located at Farmville. Hunter P. Evans is the County Supervisor. Mr. Evans also has part -time office hours at Appomattox at the ASCS office on Tuesday mornings from 9:00 to 9:30 a.m.

Hobo Returns

Hobo, the traveling dog of the C &O was back in Gladstone on Monday, May 20. He had presumably been in Appomattox in April, having been absent from the area since the previous March. Carter, car inspector for the railroad, brought Hobo to Appomattox by automobile on Monday. Carter says Hobo much prefers the railroad and will perk up his ears at the sound of any train passing through.

The June issue of Look Magazine has a four page spread on Hobo, which Carter was showing to friends in town. The dog much traveled, much - publicized may be going blind, says Look magazine, a fact which Carter verified.

Chevy II Nova 400 6-Passenger Station Wagon

A Chevy II wagon looks this big when you load it up and this big when you gas it up

That, in the eyes of most Chevy II wagon owners, is just about the size of it.

A king-size appetite for cargo. But a dainty one for gas. And this, we hardly need add, is just the kind of wagon we planned it to be.

Taut and trim as it is on the outside, we went to great lengths to keep it BI
